

The Brown Family's Easter

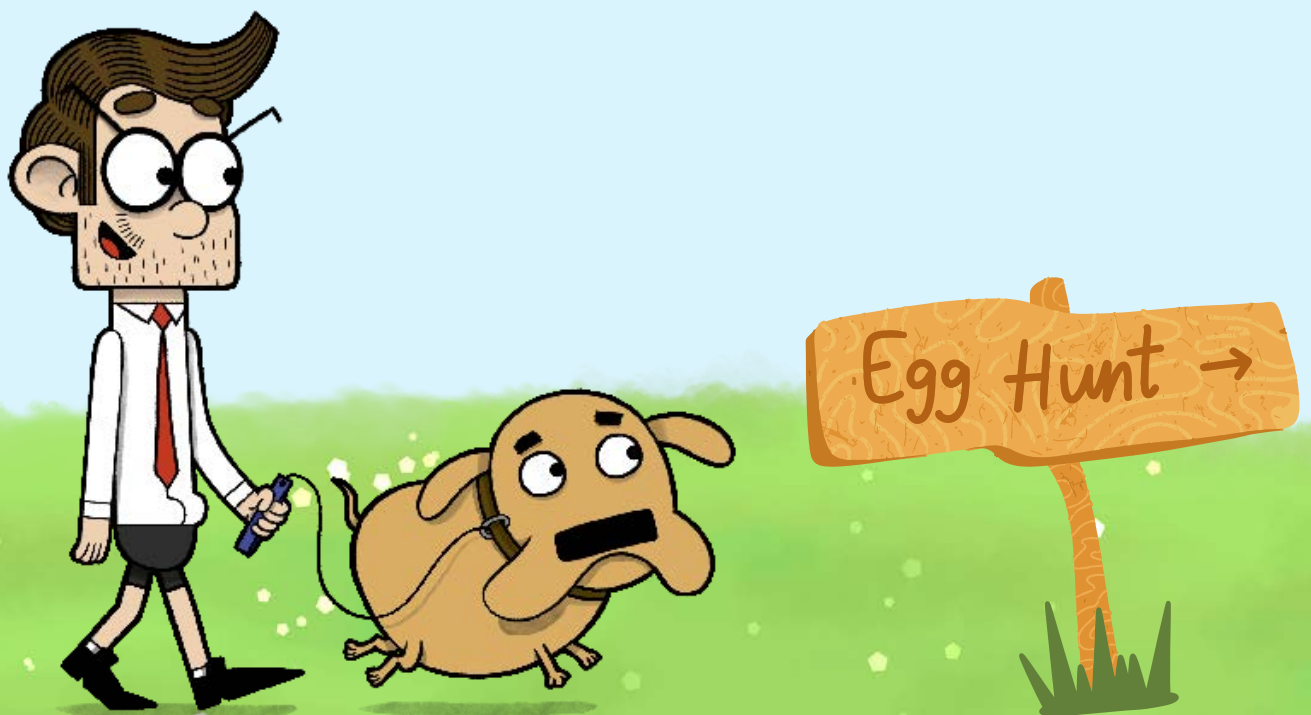

Adventure

Short Story
activity book
JUNIOR 3-4

Chapter 1:

Off to the Egg Hunt

The Brown family were buzzing with excitement one sunny Easter morning. Mr. and Ms. Brown, their three children Billy, Rod, and Bettie, Grandma and Grandpa Brown, Aunt Mrs. X, and Uncle Mr. X were all visiting London. They also brought along Bonny, their playful dog, and Fluffy, their quiet cat, for this special trip.

This year, they had decided to join the famous Easter egg hunt in Green Park. The park was bustling with families, laughter, and the sounds of spring. Billy, the eldest, was tasked with keeping an eye on his younger siblings, Rod and Bettie, as they ventured into the park. Bonny wagged her tail excitedly, while Fluffy preferred to stay snug in Ms. Brown's arms.

As they entered the park, Mr. Brown gathered everyone.

"Remember, stick together," he advised. But the excitement soon took over, and the children dashed off, looking behind every bush and tree for the hidden treasures.

Suddenly, Billy realised they had wandered far from the picnic area. "Rod, Bettie, we need to go back," he said.

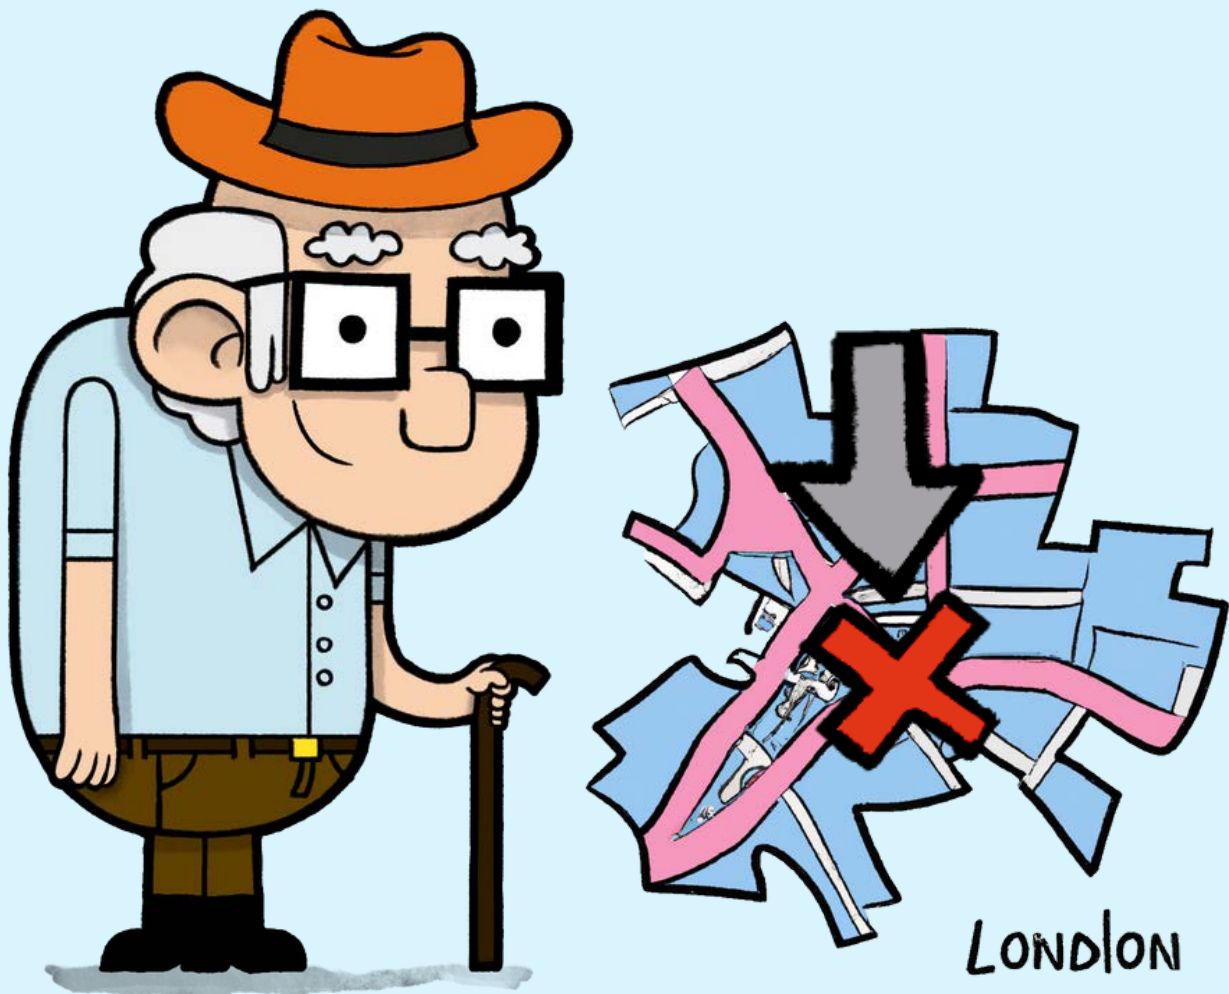

But when they turned around, the familiar sights of their family's picnic spot were nowhere to be seen.

Reading Comprehension Questions:

1. Who are the members of the Brown family?
2. What event were the Browns attending in Green Park?
3. Who is Bonny?
4. What was Billy's responsibility?
5. What did Mr. Brown tell everyone before they started the hunt?
6. Why did they lose their way back to the picnic area?
7. Describe Fluffy's behaviour during the egg hunt.
8. What is the setting of the story?
9. How did the children react to entering Green Park?
10. What was the children's initial task in the park?

Chapter 2:
An Unexpected Journey

As they tried to find their way back, the Browns stumbled upon a grand, imposing gate. "Look at that!"

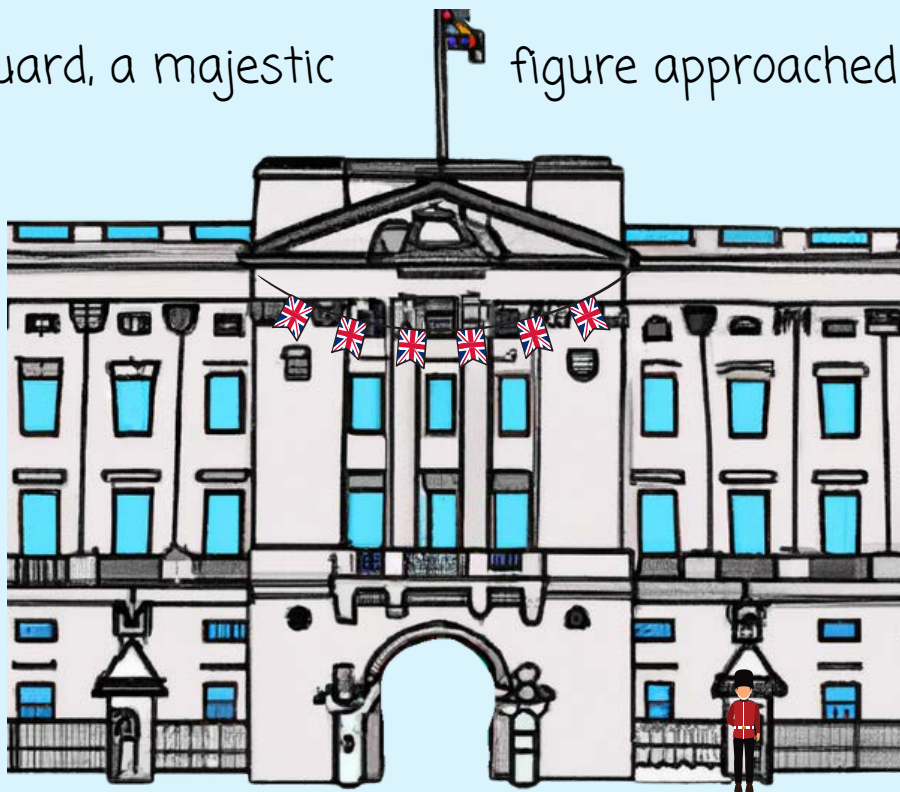

exclaimed Bettie, pointing to a plaque that read "Buckingham Palace". They had inadvertently made their way from Green Park to the royal residence.

Unsure of how to react, they stood in awe until a kindly guard noticed their puzzled expressions.

"Lost, are we?" he chuckled. The children nodded. Just then,

Mr. and Ms. Brown, along with the rest of the family, appeared, looking relieved and slightly amused by the accidental detour. As they explained their adventure to the guard, a majestic figure approached them.

"I heard there were visitors from Green Park," said the figure with a gentle smile.

It was the Queen herself, out for her morning walk.

The Browns couldn't believe their luck; meeting the Queen was something they had never imagined.

The Queen, intrigued by their Easter egg hunt story, invited them into the palace gardens.

There, to their surprise, they found more Easter eggs hidden among the flowers and trees.

The Queen watched with delight as the children, along with Bonny and Fluffy, resumed their hunt.

Reading Comprehension Questions:

1. Where did the Browns find themselves after getting lost?
2. Who first noticed they were lost?
3. How did the family react to seeing Buckingham Palace?
4. Who approached the Browns outside Buckingham Palace?
5. What unusual invitation did the Browns receive?
6. Describe the setting where the Browns continued their egg hunt.
7. How did the Queen contribute to their Easter celebration?
8. What was the family's reaction to meeting the Queen?
9. Who enjoyed the palace gardens along with the children?
10. What did the guard do when he saw the lost family?

Chapter 3:

A Royal Easter

The Queen's garden was a wonderland of colours and scents, with every corner hiding a new surprise. The Brown family, guided by the Queen herself, embarked on a royal Easter egg hunt. The children's laughter filled the air as they discovered eggs behind meticulously trimmed bushes and beneath blooming flower beds.

Even Bonny and Fluffy seemed to sense the magic of the place, with Bonny gently sniffing around the bases of statues and Fluffy contentedly watching from a safe distance.

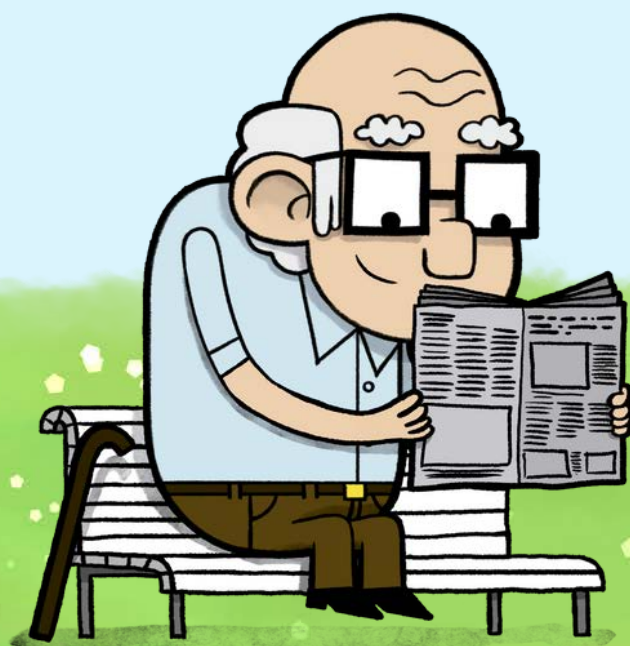

As the hunt drew to a close, the Queen invited the Browns for tea in the palace. Sitting in a grand room with high ceilings and paintings of monarchs past, the family sipped tea and shared stories of their lives back home. The Queen listened intently, occasionally asking questions or smiling at the children's tales.

"It's not every day we have such delightful company," the Queen remarked. "Your adventure to Buckingham Palace has been quite the Easter surprise for us all."

As the sun began to set, the Browns thanked the Queen for her extraordinary hospitality. "This has been the best Easter ever," Billy said, and his family nodded in agreement. They said their goodbyes, leaving the palace with memories that would last a lifetime.

Walking back through the gates of Buckingham Palace, the Browns found their way easily back to Green Park, where Grandma and Grandpa Brown, Aunt Mrs. X, and Uncle Mr. X were waiting with a picnic spread.

The family shared their incredible story, and even though it sounded almost too fantastic to be true, the joy in the children's eyes was undeniable.

As they enjoyed their picnic under the stars, the Browns realised that Easter was not just about the hunt for eggs; it was about the joy of adventure, the warmth of family, and the unexpected kindness of strangers - or in their case, a queen.

It was an Easter in London they would never forget, a story that would be told and retold for generations to come.

Reading Comprehension Questions:

1. What made the Queen's garden a wonderland for the Browns?
2. How did Bonny and Fluffy react to the palace gardens?
3. What special invitation did the Queen extend to the Brown family after the egg hunt?
4. Describe the setting of the tea with the Queen.
5. How did the Queen react to the stories from the Brown family?
6. What did Billy say about their Easter experience?
7. How did the Browns return to their family in Green Park?
8. What was the family's realization about the true meaning of Easter?
9. Who were waiting for the Browns with a picnic spread in Green Park?
10. What lesson did the Brown family learn from their Easter adventure?

Chapter 1 Answer Key

1. Mr. and Ms. Brown, their children Billy, Rod, and Bettie, Grandma and Grandpa Brown, Aunt Mrs. X, Uncle Mr. X, Bonny the dog, and Fluffy the cat.
2. The Easter egg hunt.
3. The family dog.
4. Keeping an eye on Rod and Bettie.
5. To stick together.
6. They were distracted by the excitement and dashed off.
7. Fluffy stayed snug in Ms. Brown's arms, away from the excitement.
8. London's Green Park on a sunny Easter morning.
9. They were very excited and ran off looking for eggs.
10. To look for hidden Easter eggs.

Chapter2 Answer Key

1. Outside Buckingham Palace.
2. A kindly guard.
3. With awe and surprise.
4. The Queen.
5. To hunt for Easter eggs in the palace gardens.
6. The palace gardens, filled with flowers and trees.
7. By inviting them to hunt for Easter eggs in her garden.
8. They were amazed and delighted.
9. Bonny the dog and Fluffy the cat.
10. He chuckled and engaged in conversation with them.

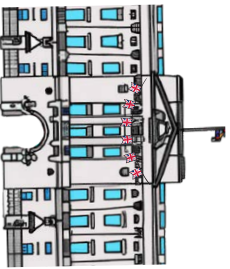

Chapter 3 Answer Key

1. The garden was full of colours, scents, and hidden Easter eggs.
2. Bonny sniffed around gently, and Fluffy watched contentedly from a distance.
3. To have tea in the palace.
4. A grand room with high ceilings, paintings of past monarchs, where they sipped tea.
5. She listened intently, occasionally asking questions or smiling.
6. "This has been the best Easter ever."
7. Easily, filled with excitement to share their story.
8. It's about adventure, family warmth, and unexpected kindness.
9. Grandma and Grandpa Brown, Aunt Mrs. X, and Uncle Mr. X.
10. The joy of adventure, family warmth, and kindness are the true essence of Easter.

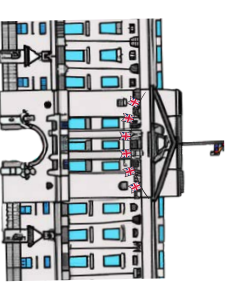

Certificate of completion

Congratulations!

This certificate is proudly presented to for successfully completing the creative journey and bringing life to the pages of

"The Brown Family's Easter Adventure
activity book"

Your hard work, creativity, and artistic talents have transformed the world around you with vibrant colors and imagination.

Keep exploring, learning, and creating!

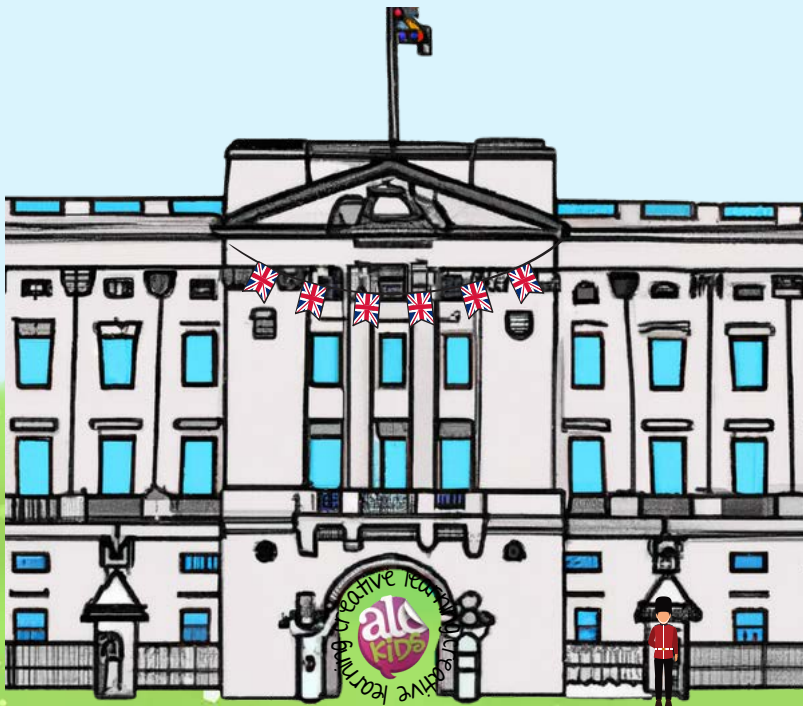

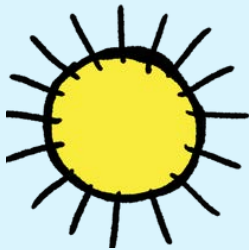

Date: _____

Signature: _____

The Brown Family's Easter Adventure Short Story activity book

JUNIOR 3-4

Join the Brown family on an unforgettable Easter adventure in the heart of London! When Mr. and Ms. Brown, along with their children Billy, Rod, and Bettie, decide to spend Easter in the bustling city, they never imagine what extraordinary surprises await them. With their lovable dog Bonny and the curious cat Fluffy in tow, they set off for an egg hunt in Green Park, only to find themselves lost and unexpectedly stepping into the grandeur of Buckingham Palace!

This heartwarming tale of adventure, family, and unexpected encounters will delight children and parents alike, reminding us all that sometimes, the best memories are made when we least expect them. So, hop along with the Browns, and experience an Easter celebration like no other, right in the heart of London!